

Fifty years ago this week, my father was in anxiety. He had planted his soybeans out in the fields, and he was worried that the soybeans would not germinate. That there would be no crop, and he would not be able to feed and care for his family. . . .

[Listen or watch the video for more about Widening the Welcome and the church's ministry to those with mental illness.]